Date: February 12, 2026
Presenter: Pastor Donell M. Winder
Lesson Title: The Authority of Agreement
Anchor Passage: Matthew 28:18–20; Luke 10:19

Big Idea

Spiritual authority is not something believers generate through effort, position, or intensity, but something God entrusts to those who remain in agreement with Him. Scripture reveals that authority flows from alignment with God and is sustained through faithful representation of His character and purposes. Authority is delegated rather than self-produced, exercised through agreement in prayer, and maintained through lives that accurately reflect God's will. When agreement with God is intact, authority becomes effective, purposeful, and kingdom-advancing rather than strained or self-centered.

Key Insights

- Authority Flows From Alignment With God: Spiritual authority is rooted in agreement with God rather than activity or effort. Scripture shows that authority rests naturally where alignment with God remains intact and diminishes when agreement weakens, even if religious activity continues. Jesus' ministry demonstrates that authority follows alignment, not striving, and that agreement with God creates the environment where authority can operate freely and effectively (John 5:19; Matthew 7:28–29; Luke 4:1–14).
- Authority Is Delegated, Not Self-Generated: Biblical authority originates with God and is entrusted to those aligned with Him. Authority is received, not seized, and loses legitimacy when assumed independently of God. Scripture reveals that delegated authority carries both power and protection, while self-generated authority lacks spiritual weight and stability. Agreement positions believers to receive authority rather than attempt to manufacture it (Matthew 28:18; Luke 10:19; Romans 13:1).
- Authority Is Exercised Through Agreement in Prayer: Authority is released when prayer aligns with God's will rather than attempting to control outcomes. Scripture connects agreement in prayer with heavenly authority, showing that prayer becomes effective when it flows from alignment with God's purposes. Authority is exercised not through emotional intensity, but through prayers shaped by Scripture, trust, and agreement with God's will (Matthew 18:18–20; James 5:16; 1 John 5:14–15).
- Authority Is Maintained Through Faithful Representation: Receiving authority is not the end of the matter; authority must be maintained through faithful representation of God's character and purposes. Scripture reveals that authority weakens when personal agenda replaces divine mission and when representation becomes self-focused rather than God-centered. Authority remains effective when lives accurately reflect God's heart, truth, and intent (2 Corinthians 5:20; Matthew 7:21–23; Acts 19:13–16).
- Authority Is Given to Advance God's Kingdom, Not Personal Control: Spiritual authority is missional by design. God entrusts authority to advance His kingdom rather than elevate individuals or enforce control. Scripture contrasts worldly authority with kingdom authority, showing that true authority serves, builds, and bears witness to Christ. Authority fulfills its purpose when it advances God's mission and glorifies Christ rather than self (Mark 10:42–45; Acts 1:8; 1 Peter 5:2–3).

Application

1. We must remain aligned with God so that authority can flow effectively.
2. We must receive authority as delegated by God rather than attempting to generate it ourselves.
3. We must pray in agreement with God's will rather than from personal agenda.
4. We must faithfully represent God's character and purposes in our lives.
5. We must use authority to advance God's kingdom rather than personal control.

Closing Thought

Authority is not a measure of spiritual status or personal influence, but a responsibility entrusted by God to those who remain in agreement with Him. When alignment is preserved, prayer becomes effective, representation remains faithful, and God's kingdom advances through ordinary lives. True authority reflects God's heart, carries His purposes forward, and glorifies Christ rather than self.
